Bridge: 'Accident waiting to happen' Few obstacles to entry

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — At the entrance from the Missouri side, the graffiti says "Fate to Black." On the Illinois side, it says "Welcome to Hell."

Although it is not listed in any tourist guide, for more than 20 years the Old Chain of Rocks Bridge over the Mississippi River has been a popular, if illicit, attraction for young people on both sides of the river.

Last week it became a scene of tragedy when 19-year-old Rob-in Kerry and her sister, Julie Kerry, 20, of north St. Louis County were robbed, sexually assaulted and then either thrown or forced off the bridge into the river 90 feet below.

Two men, Marlin Gray, 23, of Wentzville and 19-year-old Reginald Clemons of Northwoods, have been charged by St. Louis Police with second-degree murder, rape, robbery and felonious restraint.

Both men are being held in lieu of $200,000 bond in the St. Louis City Jail, authorities said. The sisters' bodies have not been found.

The bridge, owned by the city of Madison, was closed in 1968 when the new Interstate 270 bridge opened. Almost immediately, it started drawing crowds of young people out for a good time.

This week, there were no real obstacles keeping people from entering the bridge from either side of the river.

The only "No Trespassing" sign on either side of the river was a vent-one-inch by 12-inch sign welded to a bridge support on the Missouri side.

In the early 1980s, the bridge was covered with Hollywood graffiti when it served as the set for a motion picture, "Escape from New York." Since then, local "artists" have kept the tradition alive, making it a gallery of graffiti from end to end.

The "art" ranges from suicide notes to invitations to "Jump and make the fish fly" to a long essay, dated August 1989, on racial harmony.

Rock band music groups are represented, from the Grateful Dead and Doors in older graffiti through heavy metal's Metallica and Def Leppard on to punk bands like D.R.I. (Dirty Rotten Imbeciles).

EDWARDSVILLE — A woman's boyfriend and his companion were charged Wednesday with the murder of the woman's father, found burned in his truck Monday at Kirkpatrick Homes in Granite City.

Lester Raymond Brewer, 55, of Junesboro, Ark., was found dead about 8 a.m. Monday in his pickup truck after it had been set afire. The truck was parked on a lot in front of the apartment of Susan Migneron, Brewer's daughter, in the 4700 block of Kirkpatrick.

Robert Sharp, 30, of the 900 block of Madison Avenue, Madison was charged with two counts of first-degree murder and one count each of arson and concealment of a homicidal death in felony warrants issued late Wednesday afternoon. Bond was set at $500,000.

Steven Wall, 29, of Cahokia Street in Cahokia was charged with one count of concealment of a homicidal death and one count of arson. Bond was set at $50,000.

An autopsy was performed Monday but Madison County Coroner Douglas M. Burke said the cause of death is being withheld.

A source close to the investigation, however, said Brewer was choked to death and that his neck was broken.

According to a police report, Brewer was found lying on his side, with burns to his body, in a GMC Sierra Grande pickup. A burned piece of cloth was found sticking out of the truck's gas-line tank.

The motive in the case appears to have been robbery, a source indicated. The source said Wall is the boyfriend of Migneron, while Sharp is Wall's friend.

A witness told police that Wall left Migneron's apartment in Kirkpatrick Homes about 8:15 a.m. Monday and approached Brewer's truck. Wall then allegedly "yelled back to the apartment," "Your father," before calling for an ambulance.

Wall told police Monday that he and Brewer had been drinking at several locations in Cahokia on Sunday night.

Haine investigating Pontoon Beach voting

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

EDWARDSVILLE — A disruption involving a number of developmentally disabled voters at a Pontoon Beach polling place is under investigation by Madison County State's Attorney Bill Haine.

Haine confirmed yesterday that he is investigating the incident during the April 2 election at the Pontoon Beach Senior Center — the polling place for Nameoki Township Precincts 9 and 10.

The residents were registered by a candidate from the Progressive Action Party headed by successful mayoral candidate Glen Wilson.

Mayoral candidate Ray Gaudette, who was defeated by six votes, said after the election that the incident had been a "setup."

"I do not foresee the election results being overturned," Haine said, adding that opposition candidates may plan to challenge the vote through their own channels.

Controversy erupted at the polling place when some of the approximately 20 residents of Lyn-Haven Manor and Lewis and Clark Manor asked some staff members of the homes for assistance in voting.

The request drew an angry response from several precinct committeemen and County Clerk Evelyn Bowles eventually was called to the polling place to straighten out the matter. All those residents registered were allowed to vote, although the process took approximately two hours.

Reportedly at the request of Bowles, all the election judges and poll watchers were called on this week to give depositions to Haine.

Based on credible information obtained from the election judges and poll watchers, there appear to have been some things that went on with voters that are retarded that need to be investigated," Haine said. "I'm very disturbed by what apparently went on there and want to get to the bottom of it."

Haine said he was unwilling to discuss details at this point, but said the reported actions taken by a member of the staff of the homes, a voter registrar and a person who reportedly was videotaping the polling place all merit further investigation.

At the polling place, members of Gaudette's Concerned Action Party and members of Robert Pressaway's New Direction Party alleged that the disabled voters were an intentional attempt to disrupt the polls during prime voting time. The voters arrived at about 4 p.m. and Bowles arrived at the polling place at 5:30 p.m. The polls closed at 7 p.m.

THIS TREE that fell against a house in the 2200 block of Missouri Avenue on March 27, is the center of a dispute over who is responsible for its removal.

Fallen tree prompts dispute

By Bob Slate
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — A fallen tree in the 2200 block of Missouri Avenue has a resident frustrated.

James Reynolds, 67, of 2212 Missouri has had a tree leaning against his house since March 27.

He said the tree was originally located on nearby property owned by Betty Ussery. When she entered a nursing home for health reasons, it was determined that state assistance was available to demolish her derelict property, Reynolds said.

But in the process of leveling the lot March 27, the contractor knocked a tree down on top of his home, according to Reynolds, and it has stayed there since.

Reynolds' son, Dennis, said the tree fell on the evening the contractor completed work on the project.

Reynolds said they have called several city and county officials — including his aldermen, the city inspector, the street superintendent, the city attorney and the state's attorney. He contended none have seemed actively interested in helping remove the tree, "because it's on private property."

Dennis Reynolds, 34, of 2221 Cardinal Ave., said he visited Madison County Board Chairman Nelson Hagnauer's office Wednesday and Hagnauer in turn got him in touch with State Rep. Sam Wolf on the telephone.

Wolf determined that the condemnation order came from the

Pontoon repeals TIF ordinance

By Valerie Evenden
Staff writer

PONTON BEACH — The April 2 election did nothing to deter previous internal dissension on the Village Board of Trustees, but it did manage to get two points settled Tuesday night.

The majority of trustees voted to repeal two ordinances, one creating a Tax Increment Financing District for Chouteau Trace II and one creating an accompanying Special Service Area. Earlier action on the two had been deferred until after the election.

Voting to rescind both measures were Trustees Loren Madison, Robert Douglas, Irene Karlechik and Marvin Ribbing. Voting to leave the district and area in place were Trustees Bob Abel and Louis Whitsell.

Mayor Glen Wilson, who was returned to office in the election, was working and could not attend the meeting. Madison as senior trustee served as mayor pro tem.

"I'd like to say once again, for what it's worth, to leave the TIF District in place. We have 20 years left when the bonds can be sold," Whitsell said prior to the vote.

"This area is vacant land behind the Amoco station and is just sitting there, not hurting anything. If the TIF is abolished I don't know who will pay the bills if someone wants to come in (to develop it)."

Douglas disagreed, saying, "I was censured at the last meeting for things I said before about it. I recommend we pass this."

I'd like to say once again, for what it's worth, to leave the TIF District in place. We have 20 years left when the bonds can be sold.

—Louis Whitsell

"You shut it down and it may cost us quite a bit of money in the future if someone needs services put in," Abel said.

Chouteau Trace II, located just north of Interstate 270, was created as a commercial TIF district with the hope of developing businesses in that area.

The property is owned by Donald J. West, Roy R. and Constance A. Nichols, Roy West and Donald Nichols, all of Quincy.

The tax financing redevelopment area was approved following a hearing in October 1987.

The property is owned by Donald J. West, Roy R. and Constance A. Nichols, Roy West and Donald Nichols, all of Quincy.

The petition for TIF status was submitted in 1987 by Enterprises, a company owned by the San Lucas family, which previously held an option on the property.

There has been no development on the land since the district was created, it was noted.

Heyday of gambling in county recalled

WOOD RIVER — Gambling operators raked in millions of dollars and left a trail of political payoffs and violence in Madison County during much of this century, a veteran officer recalled this week.

"Gambling was wide open in some places in the county into the early 1960s," retired Wood River Police Chief Jim Buckner said.

"Gamblers from Chicago to Cairo knew there was plenty of action in Madison County."

One-armed bandits (slot machines), racetrack bookies and dice tables flourished in the back rooms of bars from Collinsville to Alton and Godfrey.

Some of Granite City's numerous cigar stores were found to be betting shops.

Gambling bosses in the region paid off some public officials, who turned their backs on such places as a once-notorious area of Collinsville Road, undercover agents of the Illinois Crime Commission found in 1964.

The late Dick Mudge ran for state's attorney in 1956 on a campaign to stamp out gambling in Madison County.

Mudge, a World War II pilot, flew over illegal gambling casinos and "bombed" them by dropping leaflets warning them to stop gambling or be shut down.

Gambling operators made big money," Buckner said.

Under orders by Gov. Adlai Stevenson, Illinois State Police had raided and closed the Hyde Park Club in Venice and the 200 Club in Madison simultaneously in 1950. But other illegal clubs later opened in Metro East.

In 1954, Southern Illinois racket boss Frank "Ruster" Wortman muscled his way into the slot machine business in Metro East. He lived in Collinsville in a home surrounded by a moat, and operated a bar, the Paddock, in East St. Louis.

"If nightclub owners didn't give Wortman a share of the gambling payoffs, they'd end up dead," Buckner said.

Wortman's bodyguards were questioned in the 1955 murder of Bobby Carr, 28, operator of the Red Rooster, a gambling den on Collinsville Road. The Red Rooster, conveniently, was located on the boundary line between Madison and St. Clair counties.

If raiders arrived from one county, tables could be moved to the opposite end of the building.

George "Stormy" Harvill, a suspect in Carr's murder, was promoted to chief of Wortman's bookmaking operation in both Madison and St. Clair counties, it has been contended.

Meanwhile, Gov. William G. Stratton followed up by sending State Police to shut down the Villa Venice casino in Venice in 1955.

In the early 1960s, gambling went underground after undercover agents of the Illinois Crime Commission infiltrated the Wortman gang.

Agents and Illinois State Police smashed 125 slot machines seized in raids at nightclubs and bars on the outskirts of Madison County in 1965.

Buckner says he kept gambling out of Wood River. He mustered a force of federal agents in 1964 and raided a book-making operation at the former H & H Tavern in Wood River.

Former Madison County Sheriff Barney Fraundorfer, after tolerating big-scale gambling in Madison while he was chief of police there for nearly two decades, put the heat on gamblers in unincorporated areas during his term from 1962 to 1966.

Fraundorfer and deputies repeatedly raided clubs and taverns, seizing craps tables and roulette wheels, Buckner related.

Fraundorfer's crackdown forced most gambling operators out of the county.

Punch cards and bingo trees still appeared on bars from Godfrey to Granite City, however, and poker games and craps tables operated in some locked back rooms around the county.

Current Madison County State's Attorney William Haine says he has told police chiefs to stop any illegal gambling that occurs.

"If we find gambling, we'll make arrests and put them out of business," Haine said.

However, there is a resurgence of gambling in the county on video poker machines, ruled to be legal.

Payoffs on poker machines in taverns and clubs have created enforcement problems for Haine, police and sheriff's deputies, Haine said.

"It's clear there are not enough resources in law enforcement to deal (fully) with (illegal aspects of) poker machine gambling," he said.

Vandal sets car seat afire

Judith J. Schreiber, 49, of the 2300 block of State Street reported this week that an unknown person entered her 1979 Chevrolet Caprice Classic station wagon and set fire to the front seat.

The fire had been extinguished by the time officers arrived, and minimal damage was reported to the interior of the car.

Auto trespass alleged

Sharon Strubberg told police. Thomas J. Gunn, 25, of the 2700 block of West 22nd Street took her silver 1981 Honda Civic auto from the parking lot of a tavern in the 2000 block of Illinois Avenue without her permission at 11:58 p.m. April 5.

The car, with Gunn allegedly inside it, was located in the 2900 block of Denver Street at 12:58 a.m. April 6. Gunn was charged with criminal trespass to a motor vehicle and was released on a notice to appear.

Drug possession alleged

Officers stopped two men who were on foot in the 3600 block of Kirkpatrick Homes at 11:47 p.m. April 6. Police reported finding a bag containing a green leafy substance in the right sock of Bobby J. Merchant, 17, of the 4500 block of Kirkpatrick. Arrested and charged with unlawful possession of cannabis, he was released on $52 cash bail. The second man not charged.

Granite City

Protection order cited

Jeffrey S. Beavin, 21, of the 2500 block of State Street was arrested at 4:15 a.m. April 7 on warrants alleging battery and violation of an order of protection.

The warrants relate to a February incident in the 1900 block of Spruce Street where Beavin allegedly pushed Becky J. McCallum and punched a chair occupied by Lisa Beavin. He was released after posting bail.

Woman struck with boot

Officers were dispatched April 7 to the 3000 block of Myrtle Avenue in response to a disturbance. Peggy Hotz, 32, reported that her husband, Ronald D. Hotz, 35, struck her in the back with a boot after she had disturbed his sleep at about 11:45 p.m. He was booked for battery and lodged pending bail.

Four car tires stolen

Harold E. Heister Jr., 36, of the 2400 block of Washington Avenue reported four tires and rims valued at a total of $1,200 were stolen from his gray 1986 Ford Econoline van April 7.

Fishing gear missing

William L. Boyer, 42, of the 3300 block of Country Place Lane reported fishing gear worth $485 was taken from beneath a bed in his residence prior to March 15.

Traffic warrant served

Donald James Ferguson Jr., 19, of Lilly Avenue was served a Granite City warrant, alleging failure to appear on a charge of leaving the scene of an accident at 5:35 p.m. March 28 while he was at the Madison County Jail in Edwardsville. He posted $127 bail and was released, pending a hearing.

Landfill use limited to 3 counties

An expanded Roxana landfill will be used only for trash from Madison, St. Clair and Monroe counties, a Laidlaw Waste Systems official promised Monday.

Laidlaw regional engineer Scott Schreiber said the limit should allay fears that trash from St. Louis, Chicago and other states will be hauled here.

Schreiber was the main witness Monday during the Roxana Village Board's public hearing on the expansion. The company seeks a 95-acre expansion of the Roxana site. Estimates of its remaining life without expansion range from one to two years.

The hearing was scheduled to resume Wednesday with testimony by Laidlaw technical experts. Landfill opponents then were expected to testify today.

This is the second time in a year the Village Board has conducted a hearing on the expansion. Roxana officials approved it in June, but the Illinois Pollution Control Board overturned Roxana's decision in November.

"We don't intend to bring any waste from outside those three counties into this landfill," Schreiber said.

However, the Madison County Conservation Alliance claims the three counties already have sufficient space for their wastes.

Schreiber disagreed, saying that, without any expansions, Madison, St. Clair and Monroe counties may run out of landfill space by 1995.

The Roxana expansion, along with planned expansions of Laidlaw's Belleville landfill and Waste Management's Chain of Rocks Landfill, plus Environmental Control Systems' proposed new Nameoki Township landfill, will give the counties 20 to 30 years of landfill capacity, Schreiber said.

Police answered 68 calls per day, annual report says

By Bob Slate
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — A total of 436,759 miles was put on police vehicles patrolling the streets of the city in 1990, the equivalent of 17½ trips around the world. The police department responded to an average of 68 calls per day in 1990.

These and other facts can be found in Chief Don Knight's year-end report.

A summary of crimes, an estimate of property damage due to crime, a list of types of calls received, and a report on departmental improvements were among the topics discussed by Knight in the report.

Calls received by the police department in 1990 numbered 24,713, an increase of 3.25 percent over 1989.

A summary of crimes and arrests includes 22 cases of criminal sexual assault, an increase of 46 percent from 1989. Five of those cases resulted in arrests, and six were cleared or unfinished at the time of the report.

A 58 percent increase was reported in cases of aggravated battery and aggravated assault, totaling 122. Fifty-five of those cases resulted in arrests, and 32 were cleared or unfinished.

A 71 percent increase in arson cases was reported last year. Thirty-six cases were tallied, with three arrests made and 12 cases cleared or pending.

Auto burglary reports decreased by 43 percent in 1990. A slight decrease (6 percent) in the number of reported robberies was noted in the report.

Overall, 9,244 arrests were made, a 10 percent increase over 1989. Of those, 449 were classified as alcohol-related arrests — a 32 percent increase over 1989 — and 40 as drug-related.

An estimate of property value related to crimes reported to police shows $1,454,423 in stolen property, $296,371 in recovered property, and $133,072 in destroyed property.

The most common calls, "as well as most dangerous," the report states, were civil and domestic problems. Officers responded 3,854 times in 1990 to calls of this type as opposed to 3,502 the previous year.

The second most frequent call was reporting of traffic accidents (2,122). Approximately $881,000 in property damage was related to auto crashes, and 485 persons were injured in those accidents.

Other frequent calls included suspicious persons or vehicles (1,740) and alarms.

The report states the department received 1,617 alarm calls, and of those only about 1 percent involved actual offenses. Businesses' alarms sounded 1,388 times and alarms at private residences sounded 229 times.

Knight estimated the cost to taxpayers for the department to respond to false alarms was about $8,400 last year. That figure reflects 1,617 alarms, multiplied by two officers taking an average of 12 minutes per call, at an average police salary of $13 per hour.

But enforcement of a city ordinance relating to false alarms generated $9,030 in false-alarm charges in 1990.

The ordinance allows for one "free" false alarm within a calendar year, with a $10 fee for each false alarm thereafter.

The fifth most common type of call to police was from citizens who had locked their keys in a car. Knight estimated the response to those calls cost taxpayers $2,600.

A total of 238 calls was received from local businesses reporting shoplifters, an increase of 14 percent.

Knight attributed a sharp rise (29 percent) in the number of traffic arrests, in part, to a young patrol force.

The current average age of the 35 officers... of the patrol force is 32 years, Knight said.

The younger, more spirited officers are inclined to cite more violators than their senior counterparts.

Fines from traffic, parking, and administrative tickets and criminal offenses totaled $210,368 for 1990, up more than 25 percent from 1989.

The administrative tickets, not utilized until late in the year, are issued for minor law violations and can be resolved by a specified payment to the city treasury.

They "have the potential to be an effective tool for our patrol officers," according to Knight.

He said administrative tickets are easier to write and take little of the officers' time. All money generated by such tickets goes directly to the city. "We anticipate the tickets will be used widely in the upcoming year," the report states.

The detective division was assigned 3,004 cases, up 158 from 1989. Of these, 631 were cleared. Thirty-five percent of the cases were felony-related.

Of 24 deaths investigated, four were determined to be homicides, all of which were solved.

Felony information and arrest warrants issued by the Madison County State's Attorney's Office totaled 181 charges; 33 persons were sentenced to Illinois Department of Corrections facilities.

All received probation, cases involving six persons were dismissed, 10 fugitives from other states were returned to those jurisdictions, and 84 defendants were awaiting trial at the time of the report.

No felony cases were lost in trials, according to the report.

Several preventive and educational programs were initiated or continued in 1990.

Extensive training was received by most of the officers, in such diverse fields as canine training, investigative techniques, survival attitude, verbal judgment, and self-defense techniques regarding "crack" cocaine.

The year also saw installation of the Law Enforcement Television Network, a program which daily airs the most recent law enforcement news and offers state-of-the-art training featuring the nation's best law enforcement instructors.

All department members are required to view the training films, some of which offer examinations at the conclusion of a program. The results of the tests are cataloged in officers' training files.

PONTON BEACH — A capacity crowd was on hand Tuesday night for the swearing-in of three incumbent trustees. They were re-elected to office for four-year terms in the April 2 election.

Village Clerk Mary E. Warren administered the oath of office to Trustees Loren Madison, Lou Whitsell and Irene Karlechik. Each was elected to serve until April 19, 1995.

388 votes; clerk — Warren, 455; and trustees — Karlechik, 464; Madison, 425, and Whitsell, 413.

Votes received by other candidates were:

President — Raymond L. Gaudette, 382; Michael L. Maccek, 125; and Randall E. Presswood, 114.

In other action, the board agreed to allow Dr. Tim Holt of Bellemore Animal Hospital to conduct a rabies clinic on the parking lot at the Village Hall, 3910 Illinois 111, on Saturday, April 27, from 4 to 5:30 p.m. A rain date of Saturday, May 18, was set.

A Neighborhood Watch Committee meeting was set for 7 p.m. Wednesday, April 17, at the Village Hall. The Drug Abuse Awareness Resistance Education (DARE) program serving children in the community will be discussed.

Health fair planned for April 16

Anderson Hospital in Maryville will host a community health fair on Tuesday, April 16, at the Maryville Assembly of God Church.

The health fair, themed "Heart Health," will give residents the opportunity to have their blood tested. Additionally, blood pressures and height and weights will be taken, and a wealth of information will be available.

The blood tests, which will be available at a cost of up to $30, screen for diabetes, kidney disorders, liver disease, gout and anemia. These tests also provide specific cholesterol and triglyceride levels.

Anyone having their blood tested must refrain from eating or drinking for 12 hours before the testing, although he may consume water, black coffee or clear tea. Those taking medica-

What You Don't Know Could Hurt You.

Shedding some light on a touchy subject—

Each year, more than 450,000 Americans are diagnosed with skin cancer—one of the most common forms of cancer. Studies show skin cancer is caused by repeated sun exposure, and in many cases can be prevented by taking a few simple precautions.

Fortunately, skin cancer is the easiest cancer to detect, and if found early enough, most cases can be treated successfully.

Close off Chain of Death

Few stories rivet the imagination quite like the deaths last week of two north county Missouri women who were apparently forced from the Old Chain of Rocks Bridge over the Mississippi.

We ask ourselves, "How could this have happened?" And the answers we get are manifold, but logical.

The bridge has been a regular party site since 1968 when it was closed. Today, graffiti of all sorts can be found as evidence of continuing visits.

Access has been blocked, but kids still find their way in. Vandals in the past have moved steel, concrete and dirt to get onto the structure.

The isolation of the bridge makes it a perfect escape from the view of authorities who center their focus on more populated areas.

All of these seem to be legitimate reasons why the bridge has become the way it is. But they do not legitimize last week's deaths of Robin and Julie Kerry.

On the Missouri side, authorities removed parking availability to limit visitors, but the bridge is still accessible. In Illinois, people can park at the Low Water Dam and wander up to the site, also just as accessible.

During a visit this week a Press-Record/Journal reporting team found only one tiny, bent-over sign indicating a ban on trespassing. We also found open manholes and other hazards.

"The City of Madison has owned the bridge since its days as a toll-producing source of revenue. Today, it stands vacant, the roadway rerouted across the newer I-270 bridge. Madison leases the bridge to Illini Carriers Inc., a natural gas transmission firm that plans to use the bridge for its own lines."

So who's responsible? We think it's a combination of the City of Madison, its lessee, the county sheriff's deputies who should be watching it more, and parents and others who have allowed people onto the bridge. We've been asking for something like this for years. Tragically, it's happened, and if a lawsuit does not result, the lawyers will be amazed.

Illini Carriers, apparently unaware of the problems on the bridge, has voiced an interest in fixing them. We urge that firm to work with the other parties to take the necessary steps. If it means more steel, dirt and concrete, so be it. If it means demolition work, so be it.

The old Chain of Rocks Bridge must not continue to be a Chain of Death.

The circus has been moved

We applaud the efforts of the Granite City School Board, Anad Temple Shriners and others to find an alternate site for this year's Shrine Circus.

Several weeks ago, when it appeared the school board was on the brink of allowing its own track and football field to be used for the site, we said we thought it was a bad move. Neighbors would be complaining, the track is already in poor shape and, despite assurances from event coordinator and former school board member Kelly Hogan, the whole thing seemed to be flying through without much forethought.

Given a little more time, the school board agreed, and the Shriners quickly found another site, this time the Gateway International Raceway in Madison. That seems to us an ideal location. The Shriners can still have their popular downtown Granite City Parade, and the circus site is only miles away.

Sheriff heeded the call

Recently we pointed out the lack of patrols by the Madison County Sheriff's Department through Eagle Park, a community said to be overrun by drug sales. Our publicity must have drawn some attention, because just days later sheriff's deputies netted 19 arrests in a surprise roadblock crackdown.

The sheriff's interest must not wane. As we said before, Eagle Park's proximity to the larger communities along Route 3 and 203 make it a perfect springboard for problems for those neighborhoods.

We hope to see continuing crackdowns by the county.

If your neighbor's left his mark, tell everybody

For every man who's ever lived next to an eyesore, or driven past one, or even owned one, combined, that must be about everybody — this column is for you.

For it's you who would best appreciate the guy who takes care of his home. Mows his yard when it needs it. Paints his porch when it chips. Replaces the shingles when they fall. In short, takes pride in appearances.

The search is on for those kinds of people in Granite City and surrounding communities, and the hope is that you'll nominate someone you know for the new Home Pride Award, sponsored by the Community Pride Committee of the Tri-Cities Area Chamber of Commerce and the Press-Record/Journal.

I'm proud to be a part of the committee's attempt to salute caring homeowners. There is enough bad talk in Granite City about those owners who don't seem to mind blight, that I'd love to see a little more attention given the other side.

The committee is now accepting nominations. What we need are a name, address, phone number and reason the property should be honored. Those can be mailed or called into the Chamber of Commerce, 1831 Delmar, Granite City, IL 62040, 876-6400.

Beginning in May, the committee will sort through nominations and begin monthly honors. Home Pride certificates will be given to a selected number of winners, and homeowners will be given a chance to display a yard sign indicating they have been cited.

Winners will be cited in continuing coverage by the newspaper. The timing is pretty intentional. One week from Saturday will be the annual "Slush Trash" city cleanup, and the committee is trying to keep the interest in a clean Granite City going. We hope that a continuing salute to proud property owners will in turn further build community spirit.

Neighborhood rehabilitation often starts with one owner's efforts. Clean one yard, and the next thing you know, the neighbor across the street is doing the same thing.

I have been witness to some startling transformations in West Granite and East Granite in the last year. In those two older neighborhoods are individual homeowners whose renovations really stand out. Knowing it often takes money to make something old look new, it does one good to see somebody make that investment. Those projects are going on throughout the Quad City area, and such efforts need to be pointed out.

May restore full Retirement Account eligibility

Comment by U.S. Sen. Alan Dixon, D-Belleville

A key ingredient for achieving individual financial security is a sound savings plan. Unfortunately, today, too many Americans contribute too little to their personal savings.

Since the Tax Reform Act of 1986, savings have fallen, with enrollment in Individual Retirement Accounts (IRAs) dropping by over 50 percent. Among those who remained eligible for IRAs, participation still fell by 40 percent.

I have co-sponsored a bill by Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, to restore full eligibility for IRAs. This "Super IRA" proposal offers incentives to enhance the extremely low U.S. national savings rate, thus helping Americans to meet higher-education expenses and to accumulate a sufficient amount for a down payment on a first home.

The bill also eliminates the tax penalty imposed on people who make withdrawals from their IRA to pay high medical expenses for themselves or a family member with a serious illness.

Specifically, this bill allows all Americans to, once again, contribute up to $2,000 into an IRA, on either a before-tax or after-tax basis. The traditional, before-tax (front-end) contribution would be deductible and would result in taxable withdrawals.

Contributions to the back-loaded (after-tax) IRA would not be tax deductible, but if the assets remained in the account for at least five years, all income would be tax-free when withdrawn.

The individual could contribute the full $2,000 to either type of account or could allocate any portion of the $2,000 limit to the different accounts.

Under current law, withdrawals from IRAs are subject to a 10 percent penalty if made prior to age 59½.

The Bentsen bill waives the 10 percent early-withdrawal penalty tax if withdrawals are used for first-time home purchases, college expenses or to defray financially devastating medical expenses.

For example, young couples, their parents or their grandparents could draw down IRAs to pay for a first-time home purchase without paying the 10 percent penalty.

In addition, parents or grandparents could draw down IRAs, without penalty, to pay for their children's education.

Finally, individuals with medical expenses (for themselves or their dependents) in excess of 7.5 percent of their income could make penalty-free withdrawals to help cover those expenses.

Tax plans 401K and 403B are employer-provided retirement plans that allow an employee to make tax-free contributions from their paychecks. Once an employee makes a contribution to these plans, withdrawals are generally subject to a 10 percent penalty tax similar to that applied to early withdrawals from IRAs.

Under the Bentsen bill, however, employees would be allowed to make penalty-free withdrawals of their own contributions to assist with first-time home purchases or educational expenses.

The Bentsen bill can help to increase the extremely low U.S. national savings rate and allow many Americans to provide for their futures and families.

I am hopeful the incentives in the bill will encourage young families to save while not penalizing them in the event of unforeseen emergencies, and I will fight for passage of this bill in the U.S. Senate.

The Cry of Victory: A wartime poem

It was the year of our Lord 1991. Watching television, as many of us did,

The war had finally begun. We sat in our homes, cozy and warm.

I heard for the first time "Operation Desert Storm."

I understood in my heart what the fighting was for.

As we sat, breathless, watching the television war.

I saw film clips of missiles coming down like rain.

Gas masks on babies as Kuwait shows the strain.

The storm raged on for 42 days and nights.

It was Saddam we were dealing with and he had no right.

To kill our people and wildlife or taint the air we breathe.

No right to put a city in bondage, praying to be freed.

The wonder of it all was to watch Saddam fall.

That city, crushed to rubble, her people standing tall.

Though they don't see sunlight, be it day or night.

Look closely: in their faces shines God's light.

Saying "God Bless America," they kiss their liberated ground.

Even though there was war, there was love to be found.

So with a yellow ribbon, your country welcomes you.

The wives: children, husbands, friends, still waiting proud and true.

So to my country, I beseech you: many lives were lost, too.

Honor their families, for in the face of death, their loved ones honored you.

Poem reflects thoughts on war

(Written before the end of the Persian Gulf war.)

I turned on the TV and what did I hear

But these terrifying words raging in my ears.

The newsmen said, "We are now at war."

It made me wonder, "What the hell for?"

The Iraqi leader, Saddam Hussein.

Otherwise known as "So damned insane."

And give to him one hell of a fight.

It was the 17th of January in Baghdad, Iraq.

When nations, united, began their attack.

Hoping to get rid of Saddam and his men.

So Kuwait could get back to normal again.

At first I wondered, "Why should we care?"

"The burden's not ours; it's theirs to bear."

But then I realized it must be right.

It is our duty to join in the fight.

The fight for peace and freedom for all.

No matter how big, no matter how small.

We must give support to troops everywhere.

And prove to them we really do care.

LISA GRAY, Granite City

Relies on Lord to end strife

(Written before the end of the Persian Gulf war.)

This war is just so scary.

Sometimes I sit and cry.

For all the innocent people Who fight for us and die.

It really isn't fair.

They didn't do a thing.

Please, Dear Lord, I pray for peace.

I hope that's what you'll bring.

All these men and women.

They don't deserve to die.

I think of them and their families.

And then I wonder, "Why?"

War's like childish fighting.

The one with the biggest gun wins.

Well, we have God as our gun.

We'll see who's gonna win.

I'll pray hard as I can.

For the Lord to end this strife.

And for every answered prayer.

Ambulances saving lives of residents

To the editor:

Paul Fisk, alderman, has some strong views about the Granite City Ambulance Service. I have some strong views also, but obviously our views are contradictory.

I am an employee of Magna Trust Co. in Granite City. I see the good work done by the Ambulance Service daily. Many of my customers are elderly and frail. They call for help, they need it immediately, not in 20 or 30 minutes. The GCAS can be anywhere in Granite City in two or three minutes.

They give every patient fast, professional attention.

I have not heard one complaint about their service. Regrettably, I cannot say the same about some of the other ambulance services.

Yes, Granite City needs to cut some of its expenditures. Were the new sidewalks downtown a necessity? Perhaps we could live without the new Christmas decorations. If we are going to cut costs, let's not begin with a service that saves the lives of Granite City citizens.

Students praised for great party

To the editor:

On Jan. 19 we had the pleasure of attending a most enjoyable evening. It was at the Granite City High School gymnasium and was sponsored by the Student Council. They called it a Senior Citizen Prom and it was decorated and planned just like a prom.

The students were all very helpful and made sure we all had a good time. In fact, they even seemed to enjoy dancing with us and to our kind of music.

"Hats off" to the Student Council and their sponsor, Mr. Hamilton, for a great party.

A bridge to nowhere....

(Staff photos by Pam Deepke-Hurd)

PLAYING — OR PARTYING — seems to be the primary activity these days on the old Chain of Rocks bridge. The writing on the surface of the bridge, above, is near an uncovered manhole, one of a half dozen on the bridge that lead to a three-foot-long, two-foot-wide catwalk underneath. The "jump" message, at right, is another of the pieces of graffiti — many with violent undertones — that cover much of the bridge. The only thing on the bridge to keep off is a rusted and bent 10-inch sign, bottom right, on a girder on the west side of the bridge.

Marquette, Clarks prominent in early history of Metro East region

The Old Six Mile Historical Society's sixth annual dinner dance is set for 5:30 p.m. this Saturday at St. Gregory's Hall, Granite City, so let's take a look back today into our community's, county's and region's past.

WHEN PEOPLE talk of recorded local history, they usually think of the last century or two.

But an Alton high school teacher, Don Lewis, once prepared for his classes on United States history by tracing Madison County area happenings as far back as 1673.

In that year, Jacques Marquette, a French priest and missionary, and Louis Joliet descended the Mississippi River.

Father Marquette had great influence with the American Indians and considered setting up a mission among those residing in Illinois.

THEIR JOURNEY had been ordered by Gov. Louis Fromental of Canada and their route here included Lake Michigan, Green Bay, the Fox River and the Wisconsin River.

From there they carried their canoes across land to the Mississippi.

As they neared here, the explorers commented that they were impressed by the large image of the Piasa Bird on the bluffs near Alton.

Passing by Metro East, they continued south to the mouth of the Arkansas River and then returned to the north by way of Gratiot and the Illinois River.

In 1699, priests of the Seminary of Foreign Missions did establish a mission in this region, at Cahokia.

Four years later, the town of Kaskaskia was founded by Jesuits.

By decree of the French Royal Council in 1707, it was decided that Illinois was to be governed from Louisiana.

Construction of Fort Chartres took place in 1723.

The French and Indian War dominated the years 1755 to 1763, ending in a British victory over the French in North America; the Illinois country was placed under British control.

GEORGE ROGERS CLARK ended that control on July 4, 1776, when he and his small army captured Kaskaskia by surprise from the British.

It was the oldest town in Illinois, and as a result of the conquest Illinois was organized as a county of Virginia.

Clark next seized the French villages of Cahokia and Vincennes. In 1780, he accepted a command under Baron von Steuben to defend Virginia against the British — and was kept busy fighting both the Indians and the British.

The grateful Virginia Legislature gave him an estate located in what is now Indiana.

THE TREATY OF PARIS in 1783 formally ended the War of Independence (Revolutionary War), extending the western boundary of the United States of America to the Mississippi River and the northwestern border to the Great Lakes.

Much of this territorial advance was credited to Clark's military triumphs here and elsewhere.

He was the older brother of William Clark, one of the leaders of the famed Lewis and Clark expedition that started in the Mitchell/Chouteau Township/Wood River area.

THE FIRST SETTLER at or near the site of Alton, J. Baptiste Cardinal, arrived in 1783.

Virginia on March 1, 1784, relinquished its claim to Illinois and turned it over to the United States government.

On July 17, 1787, Congress passed the Ordinance of 1787 providing for organization of the Northwest Territory, of which Illinois became a part. Arthur St. Clair was named governor in 1788. Illinois was made a part of the Indiana Territory on May 7, 1800. By this time, St. Clair, Knox and Randolph counties in Illinois had been organized. William Henry Harrison in 1801 took over as governor of the Indiana Territory at Vincennes. The big territory had a population of only 2,500 at that time.

EPHRAIM O'CONNOR settled in Goshen, southwest of present-day Edwardsville, near the turn of the century.

He later sold his land to Col. Samuel Judy, who remained on it until his death 40 years later. Col. Judy planted the first orchard in this county in 1801.

In 1802, Turkey Foot, chief of a band of Pottawatomie Indians, and his party were returning home from Cahokia to their village in northern Illinois. They chanced upon and murdered two men, named Dennis and Van Meter, at the foot of the bluff near the Goshen settlement.

JOHN GILLHAM arrived here in the spring of 1802 from South Carolina with his five sons. They were the first permanent settlers of Edwardsville Township.

Traveling from North Carolina, James and Joel Whitely moved to the Goshen area in 1803. Isaiah Dunnegan, a Georgia man, moved to the Wanda area.

It was on May 4, 1804, that William Clark, Meriwether Lewis and their expeditionary group left their encampment near the mouth of the Wood River and began ascending the Missouri River on their voyage to the Pacific.

EIGHT YEARS LATER, on Sept. 24, 1812, Madison County was organized.

Beginning with its present southern line, the county's original boundary extended east to the Wabash River and north to Canada.

Our county was named for James Madison, president of the United States at the time.

Six Mile Prairie (six miles east of the Mississippi River) began as a settlement in 1817.

It was not until 1818 that Illinois became a state.

Policing the casinos

Sheriff wants deputies on boats; state says that isn't necessary

EDWARDSVILLE — Madison County Sheriff Bob Churchich wants to have deputies on floating casinos but some state officials think he's all wet.

Churchich has sent a letter to legislators from the county urging funding for the Sheriff's Department to provide police protection aboard gaming boats.

Madison County State's Attorney William Haine is backing Churchich. The sheriff has jurisdiction to the middle of the Mississippi River along Madison County shores, he said.

"I don't think he's engaging in a turf battle, but rather he feels we need a greater law enforcement presence on the boat and I would support him in that effort," Haine said.

However, state Gaming Board officials and Rep. Jim McPike, D-Alton, disputed that Churchich's office has responsibility.

An Illinois State Police officer will be on every cruise of the betting boats and will have sole jurisdiction and responsibility, said Jim Nelson, spokesman for the Gaming Board.

The state officer will be primarily responsible for making sure the games are conducted honestly and according to regulations. Dealing with unruly patrons, for example, would be left to security officers.

The same approach is being used on the floating casinos that started operating in Iowa April 1.

Nelson also noted the Alton boat, targeted for a July start, will cruise off the shores of more than one county.

McPike said that was why the riverboat gambling law specifically gave enforcement responsibility to the state police. "It's my understanding the sheriff does not have jurisdiction," Churchich said he did not think having a single state police officer and security officers would be adequate to protect passengers.

"I must also note that little time or effort has been made to ensure that the people on these vessels are guaranteed any type of law enforcement protection while the vessel is under way," his letter said.

The state police officer would be primarily responsible for watching the money, Churchich said, and the security officers are "rent-a-cops whose first loyalty is to their employers."

He questioned whether adequate steps could be taken to deal with a passenger who drinks heavily and assaults others.

"Are they going to have a holding cell on the boat or are they going to toss him into the river or what?"

A Gambling Board official, who asked not to be identified, said based on the experience in casinos in Nevada and Atlantic City, officials don't expect a crime problem on the boats — but on shore.

Judge nomination delayed

The nomination of a new federal judge for the Southern District of Illinois will be delayed until at least mid-May.

The Illinois State Bar Association had to delay the interviews with the 13 candidates because making a recommendation for a new judgeship in the Central District took longer than expected, said Steve Anderson, a spokesman for the association's 32-member committee of judicial appointments.

Three Madison County residents are vying for the job, which pays $125,000 a year. Godfrey attorney and former Madison County Republican Chairman J. Thomas Long, U.S. Magistrate Gerald Cohn of Wood River and Godfrey attorney

Lewis Mallot are in the running.

AMCU supervisor named

GRANITE CITY — St. Elizabeth Medical Center, Granite City, welcomed a new supervisor to the Acute Medical Care Unit during Critical Care Nurses Week, March 17-23.

Barbara Kauffman, RN, BSN, has been with SEMC for a total of six years, working in the Critical Care Unit (CCU), Intermediate Care Unit (now AMCU), and Education Resources. She is a Granite City resident.

"I'm really happy to be working with such a professional group of nurses in an area with such high-quality patient care," Kauffman said. "I hope to continue the work being done and expand it."

Kauffman received her nursing diploma from St. Luke's Hospital, St. Louis. She earned her bachelor of science degree in nursing from Webster University, St. Louis, and also became a certified cardio pulmonary resuscitation (CPR) instructor.

The AMCU serves as a step-down unit for patients in CCU. "We care for cardiac patients primarily, but we also take care of a large number of medical patients, and some who have just had surgery," Kauffman said. "Really, we care for anyone who needs telemetry monitoring, or closer observation of their heart function. We care for patients of all ages."

AMCU also cares for patients after a cardiac catheterization has been performed. By working closely with St. Elizabeth Medical Center's Cardio Pulmonary Rehab program, the unit helps cardiac patients recover faster.

"We are planning to expand the unit to 22 beds in the near future," Kauffman said. "My first goals will be hiring and training additional staff members, as needed, and working on a promoting committee and educational opportunities for the nurses."

"The patient care in the unit is outstanding. The nurses are really good at what they do."

In May 1990, AMCU received its new digital Hewlett-Packard heart monitors. Technological advances in the new monitors, their accuracy and reliability, and their special functions enhance patient care on the unit.

SEMC held several events during Critical Care Nurses Week. "Nursing in critical care requires respect and awareness for other departments and the role each part of the health care team plays," said Kathy Gauen, Critical Care supervisor.

"Critical care does not stand alone but needs other members to recognize and assist us in determining when and how long critical care can best be utilized in this time of increased cost awareness."

Bridge

tions include a portrait of Bart Simpson and a picture of a mushroom cloud with "Eat this, Saddam" written underneath.

About a half-dozen manholes in the bridge deck gave open, dropping to small open platforms hanging above the river.

The covers, formerly welded in place by Bell Telephone, have disappeared—Graffiti and footprints suggest that climbing down to the underside of the bridge through the manholes is popular.

Chief Deputy Ray Galloway of the Madison County Sheriff's Department said he had no idea what makes it so attractive to young people.

"If I knew the answer to that, I wouldn't be here talking to you. I'd be making millions of dollars somewhere else," he said.

Galloway said that, ever since it closed, the bridge "has been an accident waiting to happen."

He said it has been the location of many minor crimes, but, "fortunately, we have never had anything this dangerous."

The land surrounding the bridge is owned by the federal government and Galloway said the sheriff's department is contracted to provide security.

During the summer, he said, the department is paid to provide extra security around the bridge "but, unfortunately, this (incident) happened too early in the season for that to help."

Mayor John Belloff of Madison said that, in the time since the bridge closed, the city has been destroyed by vandals.

Since 1985, Belloff said, the bridge has been leased to Illini Carriers and used for its own security for the bridge, including its security.

Galloway said he knows there have been attempts to secure the bridge in the past, but said he thinks this incident shows the security needs to be beefed up.

Galloway said he believes Madison needs to erect a large gate secured with barbed wire.

Tree

City Engineer John Jakich said the city entered a demolition agreement with Usersty and Hired Edwards Construction Co. of East St. Louis to demolish the house and grade the lot at 2210 Missouri Ave. He said the project was funded through Madison County Community Development funds.

Jakich said he has investigated the scene and determined the tree was "blown over, like a lot of other trees in the city" that day.

"I wish we could help (Reynolds), Jakich said, "but I don't know."

He said it was his opinion the tree fell due to natural causes, and the demolition and grading had nothing to do with the accident.

"Because it is private property, I don't see how the city can help," Jakich concluded.

James Reynolds, a retired A.O. Smith Corp. welder, said he has no homeowner insurance to cover the cost of removing the tree.

Belloff said that doing anything while the bridge is leased would put the city in an awkward legal position. He suggested that the sheriff's department contact the lessor.

Bill Boss, spokesman for Torch/Rubicon Venture Inc. in Houston, Texas, the parent company of Illini Carriers, said it was the company's belief that the Missouri side of the bridge was secured by a six-foot barbed wire fence and five-foot chain link fence. He said nobody at Torch/Rubicon was aware of the bridge's reputation as a gathering place.

"We are a gas line company and leased the bridge from the city to allow us to use it to carry a gas pipeline if we wanted to," he said. "We're not currently using the bridge for any purpose."

Boss said he could not address specific responsibility for the city of the bridge, but said the "lease with the city speaks for itself and I'm sure the mayor knows what it says."

He said he had not heard from the Madison County sheriff's department.

"If the sheriff's department asks us to do something, we will," Boss said. "We will do everything in our power to do anything that is reasonably requested. My company is very distressed by the incident and our condolences go out to the family," he said.

While emphasizing that the city is not legally responsible for the bridge, Belloff admitted it is not that easy to avert the moral responsibility.

Although Belloff said he gets scared just walking on the bridge, he said there is no denying its popularity with people.

"You should see it on the 4th of July," he said. "There are families out there with their lawn chairs and little kids to watch the fireworks on the St. Louis waterfront," Belloff said.

"It just scares me to death," he said. "The bridge was on old Route 66 and allowed traffic to miss downtown St. Louis. Belloff said its tolls were sold miles for the city while it lasted."

"I remember when they cut the ribbon for the toll-free 270 bridge," Belloff said. "Then Mayor Steve Maerz stood there with tears in his eyes. They put us out of business."

Belloff said the city doesn't want to keep the bridge, but the last time the city checked it was going to cost more than $1,000,000 to tear it down, even if the contractor kept all the steel.

He said the city sold the bridge at one point, but the person who bought it died before making any payments other than the down payment.

"I remember when they cut the ribbon for the toll-free 270 bridge," Belloff said. "Then Mayor Steve Maerz stood there with tears in his eyes. They put us out of business."

Belloff said the city doesn't want to keep the bridge, but the last time the city checked it was going to cost more than $1,000,000 to tear it down, even if the contractor kept all the steel.

He said the city sold the bridge at one point, but the person who bought it died before making any payments other than the down payment.

Because the bridge was on old Route 66 and allowed traffic to miss downtown St. Louis, Belloff said its tolls were sold miles for the city while it lasted.

"I remember when they cut the ribbon for the toll-free 270 bridge," Belloff said. "Then Mayor Steve Maerz stood there with tears in his eyes. They put us out of business."

THE LAW AND YOU

BY RICK REED
Attorney At Law

If a person is injured on the job, the question often arises as to who type of work injuries qualify for Workers' Compensation benefits. Illinois law requires that the injury "arise out of" and be incurred "in the course of" the employment. This means, generally speaking, that the injury must occur within the employee's work hours and at a place where the employee can reasonably be expected to be found while working.

In one recent case, a woman was employed by the Illinois Bell Telephone Company. At 5:00 p.m., she completed her workday, left the Phone Center on the second floor of a mall, and used a nearby escalator to go to the first floor. As she walked toward a mail exit on the first floor, her left leg slid on a slippery tile floor, and she fell, injuring her left knee. The telephone company argued that the employee's injury did not arise out of and in the course of her employment since it occurred off the employer's premises. The employer maintained that its premises, for the purpose of Workers' Compensation benefits, were limited to the space it leased. The phone company felt that the common areas of the mall were the sole responsibility of the landlord.

The employee noted that the phone company was required under its lease to pay a share of the common area maintenance costs. Therefore, she felt that the employer had a duty to ensure that those areas were safe for its employees.

In general, liability under the Workers' Compensation Act is limited to injuries occurring on the employer's immediate premises or injuries occurring off the premises while the employee is engaged in a work-related activity. There are, however, exceptions to this general rule. For instance, compensation has been allowed where the injury occurs in a public area extremely close to the employer's premises.

In this case, the Appellate Court felt that the employee of the phone company was not engaged in a work-related activity when she injured her knee. Rather, she testified that she had finished her daily work and was simply leaving the mall. Further, she was a considerable distance from her employer's immediate premises. Finally, the Appellate Court noted that she had ten or more routes to choose from when leaving work. Those circumstances indicated that her injury was not compensable under the Act.

Psalm 23:3 "He restoreth my soul."

This is one of the most quoted Scripture verses of the Bible. What a message comes flowing through this statement!

When we magnify God, exalt Him, lift Him up in praise, He will in turn exalt you! All things work together for good to them who love God. God knows what he is doing in your life. He can make evil turn and work for your good.

He will restore your soul. Cast every care upon him because he cares for you. Accept his Spirit now. His presence now. Feel your soul soar into his bosom, and feel it being restored! He will restore your soul today.

•Patton

One of the men on the team was stationed at Scott Air Force Base. When he learned he was going to be shipped out he asked a newcomer at Scott—a fine player from Malibu, Maine—to replace him on the team. That was Bruce, and that's how we met.

They've now been married two years. Some people still view pool as a waste of time and a less-than-honorable hobby. But Patton believes the game has taught her a great deal. As she begins her student teaching this spring, she sees several aspects of the game that are certain to help her in the classroom.

"I've definitely learned patience and perseverance," she said. "You have to be focused, too. And the same is true of teaching. Those aren't bad skills for students to develop either."

•Softball

Nearly overshadowing McHugh were the offensive fireworks from the Lancers. They stole 11 bases and often took the extra base.

"We have to be more aggressive defensively," said Hutchings. "We haven't been checking runners well."

The Lancers scored in each of the five innings and pounded out 13 hits. Jody Goacher, Mario Pecararo and Kelly Higgins had two hits each. Terri Buster had Granite City's only hit in the fourth, but as luck would have it, she was doubled off on Mia Puhse's line drive. Puhse relieved Bohnenstiel in the fifth and gave up the last two runs.

The Lady Warriors have now given up 81 runs in five games, and a game at Belleville West is next up today at 4:30.

"I don't think we'll come out of the batting slumps until our defense comes around," said Hutchings. "This is the first time a lot of the kids have seen varsity pitching. We pretty much had a lineup at rock."

They might be able to turn things around early next week with games Monday at Alton (a makeup of the April 4 rainout) and Tuesday at East St. Louis. Granite City was 4-0 against those teams a year ago.

"Maybe we can break out of the slump against a slower pitcher," said Hutchings. "Maybe if we can beat Alton and East St. Louis, we can turn this thing around."

the shutout in the seventh when Chris Hildreth and Billy Van Buskirk walked ahead of Les Nunes' RBI single.

"I'm glad we scored," said Stegemeier. "It shows we didn't give up. We hit the ball hard several times. Les hit it hard twice for outs and then got a chinker to fall in. That's the way it goes."

The Warriors were fortunate to still be playing in the seventh. East stranded 11 runners, and just came up short of winning by the 10-run rule. Granite City hosts Belleville West in a 4:30 double-header today. The first game only will count in the conference standings. The Maroons' surprisingly are off to an 0-2 SWC start.

GCAHA honors teams at banquet

The Granite City Amateur Hockey Association hosted its annual awards banquet April 6 at the Granite City Township Hall.

Approximately 310 were on hand to honor participating players for the recently concluded season. Every player received a trophy noting his or her participation. Special recognition was given to players who received Amateur Hockey Association of the United States (AAHAUS) patches. Players who received Zero Club Patches (goalies who recorded shutouts) were Brandon Rollins, David Svezia, Donnie Brueckman, Robbie Slater and John Nappier of Granite City; and Zack Thatcher and Ben Tobin of Alton.

Hat trick recipients (three goals in one game) included Brent Solberger, Tyler Solberger, David Svezia, Jon Burns, Ryan Pignod, Richie Kismar and Bryan Loftus of Granite City; Jeff Skinner of Madison; Justin Fletcher and Kevin Martin of Collinsville; Dustin Dixon of Alton; and Aaron and Jason Price of Highland.

Playmaker Awards (three assists in one game) went to David Svezia, Gene Ortolan, Robert Pritchard, Laura Morgan and Matthew Foley of Granite City; Stephanie Travers of Collinsville; Zack Thatcher of Alton; Aaron Price of Highland; T.J. Lybarger of Edwardsville; Darryl Zastrow of St. Louis; and Bobbie Wondolowski of Glen Carbon.

In all, 31 AAHAUS patches were awarded, a big improvement over last year's 18.

Special recognition was given to the Bluebliners, the booster club for the Blues which made generous contributions to the Steeler programs. Contributions this year included a cash award of $300 in the name of Brett Hull for his third hat trick of the season.

Member families of the GCAHA voted to elect members to the board of directors. The four members with three-year terms are Charles Travers and Susan Fletcher of Collinsville, and Joe Fiedner and Hank Angle of Granite City. Retiring from the board of directors was Kathy Gočan of Granite City. Gočan devoted many years to the association and was recognized by the membership for her extended service.

Numerous attendance prizes were presented, including a one-week complimentary attendance to the Huron Hockey School, courtesy of the Huron Hockey Program, and a one-week complimentary attendance to the Wisconsin Hockey School, courtesy of the Badger Hockey program. Other prizes were available courtesy of Shell Oil, the Blues, Ralston Piqua, Pepsi-Cola, Casey's Sporting Goods, the GCAHA and Earl's Sports.

Plans are beginning to be developed for the summer "dry land" program. Regular season registration is slated for July and August, with the season beginning in late September or early October.

•Moad

been hitting the ball pretty good in all directions," Moad said. "There have been a lot of hard ground balls between first and second and also up the middle a lot."

Moad's 11 doubles put him in a position to break Tony Duenas' single-season school record of 19 set in 1986, and that's the mark he has his eyes on. But the Cougar record for average is .429 by Tom Ritzheimer in 1981, so that could fall as well. Moad also has 38 hits with 35 games left to play, so Daren DePew's SIUE record of 75 hits in 1987 is also in jeopardy.

It sounds like the adjustment from junior college to NCAA Division 1 pitching hasn't been that tough so far. Moad played two years at Lewis and Clark Community College, batting .305 and .326.

"The pitching here is good, but it's not that much better than what I saw in junior college," he said. "You see a lot of good pitching in junior college."

because a lot of good pitchers go there so they can get drafted. And the pitching in our conference with teams like Meramec and Three Rivers was real good."

The 483 average actually looks slightly pale when compared to the blistering pace Moad had set earlier. He got his average as high as .600 (.33 for 350 late last week. What in the world has this guy been eating?"

"His mom's over there, ask her," said Jamie Hogan. "Find out what she's feeding John and then get me the recipe."

Moad was in the cleanup spot for a couple of games, but still often bats seventh.

"I guess I have to keep that average above .550 to hit fourth," he said with a smile. "But it helps that everyone else is hitting. It's tough to pitch around anybody on this team."

Moad is suddenly a hot property. It seems everyone is bidding for his services this summer. He's been the first baseman for the Miners in the Mon-Clair League the last two years and would like to stay that way.

"The guy from the Fairview Heights team in the CICL (Central Illinois Collegiate League) is coming to talk to me this week," said Moad. "And Dennis Pieper (the McKendree College coach) is supposed to talk to me this week about playing on an AAU team that's going to Europe for two weeks in the summer."

"I don't know about it. I need to work during the summer. I would rather work during the week and play in the Mon-Clair League on Sundays. We'll see what happens."

What's happened so far this spring has been amazing.

NOTES: Tim Hogan is still batting close to .350 as the Cougar left fielder and is setting his sights on the stolen base record. He has 26 steals. The record of 37 was set in 1983 by George Vogel. Jamie Hogan is expected to be back in the Cougar lineup soon. He stretched some ligaments in his knee during the spring trip to Georgia three weeks ago. Darin Hendrickson is 4-2 with two saves.

Booming news: Miniature roses take center stage

The March meeting of the Terrace Garden Club was held in the home of Marguerite Lexow. A dessert luncheon was served to nine members. The meeting was called to order by President Myrtle Hickman.

Ruth Ann Bartels gave an interesting talk about miniature roses. She said that the blooms average 1 1/2 inches across. The plants are anywhere from 6 to 36 inches high. Miniature roses are best grown close — a pot on the patio, at elbow height on top of a low, walk or mound, or grouped together in a small garden bed. Like most hardy perennials, they can't survive winter outdoors above ground. To "over-winter" potted minis, gardeners should sink plants into garden soil in autumn and there mulch them, or bring them indoors and place in a sunny window or under strong fluorescent lights. They will continue to bloom.

Cub Scouts earn awards

Awards were presented and a show-and-tell session was held at the March 21 meeting of Cub Pack 15 at Eagles Aerie 1126 on Madison Avenue.

Den Six presented the colors. LeRoy Slack discussed the progress of Friends of Scouting program. Cubmaster Richard Waelterman said the Union District Pinewood Derby will take place April 30 at the Granite City Campus of Belleville Area College. Registration will be from 8:30 to 9:45 a.m. and racing will start at 10 a.m.

The pack will clear debris at the Eagles Aerie, which sponsors the pack, on Stash the Trash Day April 20.

The Lincoln Pilgrimage will take place on April 28, with two Pack 15 den members participating. Joe King's Den Six Cub had the show-and-tell segment, and a uniform inspection was conducted by Pack Commissioner Carolyn Smith and Stark.

Love lands major Eagle post

Harold R. Love recently received correspondence from Jerry Wilson, director, Fraternal Order of Eagles D.D. Doc Dunlap Kidney Fund, to serve as midwestern regional chairman of the D.D. Dunlap Kidney Fund for 1990-91.

Wilson stated that the reason for selecting Love two years in a row was that last year's funds from the midwestern region exceeded all previously goals. It was decided in Milwaukee that Love would be an excellent chairman to beat his own record.

As chairman, Love's duties will be to initiate fund-raising events, conferences, meetings, conventions and workshops and to make suggestions for different types of fund-raising events.

The territory covered by the chairmanship includes North and South Dakota, Illinois, Missouri, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Nebraska, the upper Michigan peninsula, and Manitoba, Canada.

Love, a past president of the local Eagles Aerie, is married to the former Margie Hochuli.

The Loves have three children: a married daughter, Pam, who lives in Gibraltar, Mich., and two sons, Harold W. and David Love, both of Granite City. They also have a grandson, Matthew Phillip Stevens, of Gibraltar.

Love will soon be celebrating 28 years in the Quality Assurance Division of McDonnell Aircraft, St. Louis.

Albert Brooks comedy questions fears

At age 12, the father of filmmaker and comedian Albert Brooks died of a heart attack. Brooks' father, a well-known "Greek dialect" radio comedian named Harry Einstein, had always encouraged his young son to give vent to his fears, express himself, especially as an entertainer.

Now, 31 years later, Brooks says that the death of his father, and his remembrances of how he felt about the mysteries of death, are what finally caused him to write the screenplay for "Defending Your Life." It's comedy-love story starring Brooks and Meryl Streep about what happens to people immediately after they die.

"I think I got a head start because of my dad's untimely demise on thinking about where do people go after they die," Brooks says. "And I know that as a moviegoer, I was really frustrated over the years because death is going to happen to everybody and yet so few movies are made about it and they all seem to be the same. 'They're all angels, there's clouds and there's wings and I thought there's got to be some thing else. There has to be something else. I also never bought the fact that one religion in the world was right and one was wrong. Brooks says, 'Whatever it is, I couldn't imagine that there would be a supreme being who would say, 'Hindu! Sorry, wait over there.'"

Brooks said his first draft of the screenplay for "Defending Your Life" took shape five years ago and was 300 pages long, twice the size of the average screenplay. After making the movie "Broadcast News" in 1987, for which he was nominated for an Academy Award as Best Supporting Actor, Brooks says he decided to go ahead with the project in earnest.

"I was looking for a common denominator for the script, and it was hard to come up with one until it dawned on me that fear, both of dying and facing up to the challenges of living, was the one thing that all of us had to conquer."

In this story, the point of

being on Earth is to overcome fear. Brooks says, "Everyone is afraid of something. I think it is the most common emotion there is. You're likely to find someone who has never felt happiness, but you can bet your life you won't find someone who has never been afraid."

In "Defending Your Life," Meryl Streep plays another person who has just died who Brooks character meets and has an innocent, romantic interlude with. While there's a going through a post-death evaluation process at a place called Judgment City.

"I'm friends with Carrie Fisher and Carrie thought that Meryl and I would get along, so she arranged a dinner for the three of us while I was in the early stages of preparing this movie," Brooks says. "While we were eating, Meryl sort of made a joke and asked if there was a part in my movie for her. I didn't even pay attention. I thought she was kidding."

And then about three days later, I came to my senses and I said, 'Of course there's a role for her. I'd have never thought of her because she's viewed as such a great actress, you think of her as unapproachable. But in fact, the opposite is true. She's remarkably approachable. She's a regular person, and I think that approachability and normalcy comes across in her portrayal to the benefit of the picture.'"

"In fact, Meryl is so average, it's ridiculous, in a good way. Brooks prefers to direct the screenplay, he writes because he feels if he doesn't, the film won't turn out to be what he wants. It began with his first screenplay for the film "Real Life" in 1979 and has continued through Brooks' last three motion pictures, "Modern Romances" in 1981, "Lost In

THE DEATH OF his father affected Albert Brooks' life.

America" in 1985 and now, "Defending Your Life." Brooks made his feature film debut solely as an actor in Martin Scorsese's "Taxi Driver" in 1976. His other films as an actor include "Twilight Zone: The Movie," "Private Benjamin,"

"Unfaithfully Yours" and "Broadcast News." Although Brooks' television career and early work as a stand-up comic list many credits over the years, Brooks' film work, for which he is primarily known, is relative sparse, with only nine films to his credit in 15 years.

"The majority of films made in America are about cops, or at least that's the way it seems," Brooks says. "And I never wanted to play a cop. There aren't that many great films around that you would sort of give your life up for."

"It would be nice, income wise, to go and make an occasional National Lampoon movie, but I treat movies a little more seriously than that. But don't worry. I've got some trash coming up. I won't let the public down."

In 1971, Brooks wrote an article for Esquire, "Albert Brooks: Famous School of Comedians," which became his first foray into film making when it was adapted for the PBS series, "The Great American Dream Machine." The six short subjects Brooks created for the first season of "Saturday Night Live" are considered to be comedy classics.
